SCENE IN THE TROPICS

Beckham & friends at Cavalli

Following his selfie — er, meeting — with Gov. Rick Scott in Tallahassee Monday, David Beckham had dinner with five friends at Cavalli Restaurant & Lounge. After dinner, he and his group went up to the Lounge where he ordered a bottle of Grey Goose vodka. Also spotted there was Anthony

Mackie, who's co-starring in the upcoming Captain America movie and was also spotted Tuesday at Cavalli.

Mackie was also seen Wednesday with friends at Zuma, a place we're told that Rafael Nadal adopted as his second home during the Sony tournament. He was seen there almost daily eating "some healthy choices from the menu."

Colombian doubles team Juan Sebastian Cabal and Robert Farah competed against each other off-court and behind the bar Monday at the Sony Open Bombay Sapphire Players Mix-Off Competition, shaking up the perfect Sapphire Ace Collins, the official cocktail of the

ULTRA MUSIC FESTIVAL

David Guetta burst onto American radio airwaves in 2009 with his hit album One Love. Packed with mega-hits in collaboration with mega-pop stars (I Gotta Feeling featuring the Black Eyed Peas, When Love Takes Over featuring Kelly Rowland and Sexy Bitch featuring Akon), the album by the French producer changed the sound of American pop music as we know it. His success continued to soar with 2011's Nothing But the Beat and he's now one of the highest-paid and best known DJs on the scene.

"I was trying to find a new sound and, you know, that's what I have to do always as a DJ, as a producer," Guetta told us at the groundbreaking party for the sales center for Paraiso Bay, a new Edgewater condo development expected to open in 2016, where he's purchased a unit. He also shared that he's currently working on a new album.

Guetta's back in Miami this week at Ultra Music Festival's main stage Sunday night. He won't be headlining a party with his wife, Cathy, of 24 years this time; their divorce was finalized in a Paris court a few days ago.

Here's what he told us about finding a new home in Miami and what we can expect from his show.

Why did you decide to buy a condo here?

I've been coming here for many years because of the music conference, you know, 15 years, maybe more. What happened is, as a lot of Europeans, I knew only Miami Beach and, of course, it's a lot of fun, but to me it was not enough. And then I was hanging out with some friends, and they introduced me to the art district and to the design district, and I'm like, wow, I could never have imagined that there was something like this here, so to me it became so exciting to have at the same time Miami Beach so close and this place is a little more underground, a little more cultural, closer to the European culture.

I have a friend here who's a Realtor. ... he told me about this project [Paraiso Bay], and I'm like, wow, this is really exciting. Plus, for me again, coming from Europe it's a kind of an experience that I never had, to have a building like this. It's about a lifestyle. ... To have the gym and the swimming pool and the restaurants and all of this, it's really a new experience for me. Also as an investment, I think the area is going to develop more and more.

Does this mean Miami's clubs will be seeing more of David Guetta throughout the year?

Exactly. That's what it means. Exactly, because I'm going to spend more time here, so obviously I love playing LIV and Story, so you're probably going to see me more.

You debuted "Play Hard" last year during Ultra's first weekend. Do you have any new tracks that you plan to debut this year?

Oh, yeah. I have this record I just released on Beatport, it's more like for DJs, you know. It's called Shot Me Down. It's No. 1 on Beatport now. I'm gonna play with it, and by that time it will be really, really big in the DJ community, so I'm going to play this one. And, OK, I'm going to give you an exclusive. I never said that to anyone. Right now I'm working on a remix for Avicii's next record, so it's like a producer collaboration, and it's coming out really good.

You shot to fame in 2009 with "One Love." You collaborated with so many pop artists and hip-hop artists. What inspired you to seek out those collaborations?

I was trying to find a new sound, and you know that's what I have to do always as a DJ, as a producer, and it's been a huge success with One Love and then with Nothing But the Beat and then, you know, it kind of reshaped what became the new pop music in America, I think.
